Dixon Hughes Goodman Wins Tech Council of Maryland's 2014 Outstanding Place to Work Award

Rockville, Md., November 12, 2014 – Dixon Hughes Goodman was announced as the Tech Council of Maryland's 2014 Outstanding Place to Work on Friday, November 7th. The TCM Award is about passion as well as creating a positive and productive work environment.

To be considered for this award, each applicant completed a five-question application and submitted an office "selfie" showing their culture. Dixon Hughes Goodman is proactive in our approach to help employees gain a work-life balance utilizing the four pillars of our wellness program: community, mental, physical and family. To truly show this, we created an infographic that can be viewed here. Regional Managing Partner Brian Carlton states, "We are honored and humbled to win TCM's Outstanding Place to Work. We take pride in making sure our people are happy and passionate about their work and Dixon Hughes Goodman, so it is great to be recognized."

The four core values at DHG are passion, innovation, trust and relationships, enabling a positive and open atmosphere. Our wellness formula includes community, family, mental and physical aspects, promoting a work-life balance. It is about the little everyday things, such as a 'thank you', welcome lunch, fist bump and every other normality that make us an outstanding place to work. Our leaders inspire passion and encourage our people to grow personally and professionally.
