July 21st, 2015-Lanigan, Ryan, Malcolm & Doyle P.C. launches a new website.

The new LRMD website offers a clean, mobile friendly and easy-to-navigate functional platform. It includes an outline of all services provided and industries served as well as staff bios and client testimonials. It also provides considerable resources to educate visitors on business best practices, news and trends. These include a blog, an event page for seminars and training modules, an online tax guide, as well as articles that address current business trends.

Other features include a built in contact form as well as a career module to enable visitors to directly send a message from the website or apply for career opportunities. The new website also comes with social media integration and direct links to LRMD's Twitter and LinkedIn pages, where Company updates, business news and trends will appear on a regular basis.

"The goal in launching this new website is to provide one more access point and online resource for businesses and individuals to learn more about Lanigan, Ryan and how we can help them grow and prosper," said Steve Staton, partner in-charge of the redesign project.
